

Rifco National Auto Finance

SENIOR ANALYST, PERFORMANCE ANALYTICS AND REPORTING

Are you ready to start a new adventure with a growth oriented, forward looking -company? Does seeking out new frontiers of data and analytics grab your attention in a meaningful way? Then you should keep reading and think about applying.

Rifco National Auto Finance wants to lay the groundwork for leading edge constructs in data, analytics and reporting so in turn we can lead the industry. The future is full of opportunity and game changing ideas but we need the foundation to fully test and exploit them. Rifco is looking for builders and explorers.

As an individual contributor or part of a team have you experience:

- Developing a corporate data warehouse, inhouse or outsourced
- Building reports using BI Tools and fluent in multiple query languages
- Conducting deep dive analytical exercises into business, financial or operational performance
- Used words like predictive, correlational, algorithm, statistical or modelling to describe your pride projects
- Providing audit and /or reconciliation to validate the integrity of data and reports

If you have formal training (university, college or other) to do any of the above and been working within a technology centric business department for over 5 years you should consider the role of Senior Analyst, Performance Analytics and Reporting.

The objective is simple build the best and make it better. We will start with a blank page and go from there. You will lead and not be led.
